

NERRISA BONIFACIO is a PhD student at the University of British Columbia School of Nursing. Her research interest lies in the history of Canadian mental health care, specifically the movement from institutional care to community care. For her dissertation work, she is examining the current model of care in community mental health, psychosocial rehabilitation (PSR).