

MARINA MORROW is the Director, Centre for the Study of Gender, Social Inequities and Mental Health and an Associate Professor, Faculty of Health Sciences, Simon Fraser University in Vancouver Canada. In her work, Marina is interested in better understanding the social, political and institutional processes through which health and mental health policies and practices are developed and how social and health inequities are sustained or attenuated for different populations. Marina strongly supports public scholarship and collaborative research partnerships with community-based organizations, health care practitioners, advocates, and policy decision makers. Marina's research has been published in a wide range of academic journals and policy reports. Her most recent publication (with Kate Rossiter) is Intersectional frameworks in mental health: Moving from theory to practice, in O. Hankivsky (Ed), (in press) Health and Intersectionality Inquiry in Canada (Vancouver: UBC Press).
