

DEBORAH THIEN is Assistant Professor of Geography at California State University, Long Beach, USA. A feminist geographer, she specializes in the study of emotion, health and well-being; the effects and affects of gender; and rural, remote and northern places. To understand these concerns, she has conducted fieldwork in Canada, Scotland, New Zealand and California's Sierra Nevada. She has published her research in journals including Area, Health and Place; Gender, Place and Culture; The Canadian Journal of Public Health; and The Journal of Geography in Higher Education. She has also authored several book chapters, for example, in Emotion, Place & Culture (Ashgate 2009), and is the book review editor for Emotion, Society and Space. As a member of the Open Doors team, Deborah is investigating the history and geography of Post-Traumatic Stress Disorder in the wider context of the deinstitutionalization of mental health care in Canada.
